Intration of Wisconsin,—The Ripon "Home" has a foreithe article on the subject of dividing Wisconsin, it proposes to run a line-due west to the St. Croix from where the Michigan line strikes the State of Wisconsin, west of Lake Michigan, and embracing all the region north to the British Possessions, which, it cars, would form a State of ample dimensions, beasides possessing all the requisites necessary for a rich and dense population. The present rapital is too far from the northern portion of the State for purposes of legislation, while a division would be too far from the northern portion of the State for purposes of legislation, while a division would red to build up a commercial emportum upon the shores of Lake Superior, which would we with any in the West.
